

e. And in its nature:

The nature of the subject involves three aspects that impinge in differing degrees on the mind of the class. These aspects may be categorized briefly as follows:

- (1) emotional
- (2) controversial
- (3) contemporaneous

and I will try to describe all of them in adequate detail as we go.

2. Some spiritual aims for the course...supplementing those aims given on our official syllabus statement:
  - a. informing students about the religious structures as we find them today....
  - b. challenging students (all personnel!) to a committed life in the light of the expectations and desires of the Word of God.
  - c. demonstrating policies healthy and unhealthy as they may affect the life of the church
  - d. studying theological posturing and trying to set for ourselves proper goals and courses.
3. The implementation of this aim (see also our course syllabus sheet)
  - a. lectures...
  - b. Bible studies as prescribed...
  - c. Required readings....
  - d. Guest lecturers....
  - e. Tests....
4. Class Policies
  - a. Be present
  - b. Be on time
  - c. Be prepared