

Both YOUNG and STRONG in their concordances keyed to the KJV tabulate the English words and give reference to the Greek words behind them. They have individual arrangements but either is easy to use and the giving of the Greek words will allow one to go to the Lexicon for fuller information.

Today there are similar concordances for the RSV, the NIV, the NASB. Computer work has made the production of concordances much easier.

ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK CONCORDANCE TO THE NEW TESTAMENT (Wigram) is an old work that keeps showing up in new editions. It words from the root of the Greek word and shows it in Greek and then transliterated Greek to English letters. The term you are looking for is shown in italics and the context in which it is found is given in English. This is the most likely useful Greek concordance for persons in this class...although sometimes following the transliterations is not easy.

A CONCORDANCE TO THE GREEK NEW TESTAMENT (Moulton and Geden) is all in Greek and the roots are printed in uncials! The chief advantage is that the context can be verified... the chief disadvantage is that you must read Greek to be able to use it well.

There are many others.

--But a concordance assignment is not out of order. See how many Greek words are translated "look", "receive", and "give". When you discover the Greek word behind these, then see how many different ways that Greek word has been translated. Get a feeling for how the ideas of the translators powerfully affect the text. This is for you to do, I will ask about it, but I am not suggesting you turn it in!

6. Added vocabulary: Add these to your slowly growing vocabulary list:

- |         |                                            |          |     |
|---------|--------------------------------------------|----------|-----|
| 26. ἀπό | - from                                     | 28. καί  | and |
| 27. δια | - through (gen)on account of(acc.) | 29. ἀλλά | but |
| 30. ὅτι | that                                       |          |     |

And your assignment is:

- an hour of Greek reading with your "buddy"
- do the work given on pages 45-46
- review all the noun material from lessons 5-6
- do the assigned concordance study
- add the vocabulary above....

and stay out of trouble! There is on page 49 some more Greek if you want something else for practice.
