"smashing them down". The action intensified and in a few plays Biblical had evened the score and marched on...playing to a final 21-8.

You see, in the process of things Cuccaro discovered that one or two players for the other team had not played a lot of volleyball. They were soon to learn. With considerable ability Cuccaro began directing everything possible at these players, good sports and willing to try everything types, but not power volleyball players. If it was not a Grauley smash it was a Cuccaro pass to one of the men he spotted...the ball was kept far from their star and their better players. The objects of this volleyball work just had difficulty playing the ball let along setting it up very well. The least that can be said is that on that day they played a lot of volley-ball...muchof it for us. The Editor does not remember the scores. A Biblical student, John Ferguson, was keeping score and being a non-partisan participant doing a bit of refereeing as well..being overly generous with the foe but we graduated him anyway. After six games he called for a short break and one of the West-minster persons thought we had played long enough. Dr. Adams favored a discontinuance and one of his supporters suggested they play at least until they had won one.

At this point the genius of Dr. Adams' counselling techniques became plain to all. "We are not," he said, "going to win one. We only made five points in this last game and they gave us those. We may play all night but we are not going to win one." At which point we stopped, had some refreshment and discussion and toured the building. It was a once in a lifetime affair and that is how we recall it.

But all did not end at that point. The following spring we were challenged at softball and won a surprising victory when Dr. Grauley and students Will Varner and David Dunbar hit prodigious home runs. The following year Varner and Dunbar were in graduate programs at Westminster and revenge was sought. But, alas, as providence would have it Varner could not be there and
