

Nichol, a short but powerfully wristed student, who did not live in the dorm and just then the arm-wrestling champion came by. Feeling abashed at having lost so easily he challenged Nichol on the spot in the hopes of retaining some honor. His challenge was accepted and he was quickly dealt a near mortal blow by Nichol who was not so worried about hurting him as had been Basile. Nichol quickly offered an apology and demonstrated that he was a deadly with his left arm as with his right. Our athletic friend looked grim...looked briefly at the Editor and decided to call it a night. The dorm, I might add, was following at a distance and howling as only a group of single seminarians can do. Their champion recovered from his losses and no permanent damage was done. But remember the next time someone tells you how good you are it may be in the hope of some humor at your expense. And no party is so deadly as a group of students with little to do...we had better double the assignments.

the Weakly remembers.....

THE HAPPY YEARS OF WORKING WITH DAVID MC CARTY

The real story of Biblical is a story of people working together in a remarkable fellowship. Of course they come and go, we all go in time but when one goes it leaves a gap filled in only with memory. And that is how it is with David McCarty, our first development officer.

The Editor remembers when Mr. McCarty came to Seminary.. ..to that other institution, generally unnamed, in which the Editor previously taught. He had been successful in business and having been converted had decided to receive some Christian teaching. His arrival at the Seminary triggered a new wave of optimism as we saw a number of professional people deciding to work in Christian
