

- c. Sentence Analysis of content
 - d. Systematic study of the portion
 - e. Relation of divisions and segments..with continual review of the work so far....
 - f. Assignment of an overall theme
 - g. Notation of how segments relate
 - h. Development of an analytical chart:
 - Column I..the major divisions, what they say.
 - Column II..interpreting the text, how it supports the divisions
 - Column III..the lessons learned and general or specific application notes.

Probably, at this point, I will enter into come cautionary notes on charts and this method of study.
 - i. Finalizing the finished product: a strong summary
6. Illustrative work:
- a. Psalm 5 (probably on the overhead, well...)
 - b. Psalm 101 (overhead, if you are fortunate)
7. Some study helps for further work in this method:
- a. Graham:
 - b. Jensen:
 - c. Traina:
 - d. et al....
8. Some cautionary notes on systems and the importance of continuing, practical study..a part of the daily grind, not just a class preparation technique.