

- b. Learn to be increasingly content with what God provides for you. As His will is right in salvation, His knowledge is proper in supply of our circumstances. Do not be hesitant to call on Him but be thankful first.
 - c. And with this note that it is not only the presence of the Lord, but also His Word that sustains us. v. 31.
5. ^U Conclusion:

The sad part in the study of a psalm like this is that one may feel detached from the truth. It is so devotional and high in its tone that it may be beyond the average reader. But this is part of our total relationship to the Biblical truth. Until we are willing, eager, and ready to take the truth of the Word and apply it, we cannot expect to know a lot of the "deeper" blessings. Rather than looking for new and thrilling experiences, our desire should be to come to this Word, be instructed and be encouraged.

III. Conclusion:

- A. Our series has treated only a few psalms. What is hoped is that it sets a tone for further meditation in the Word and a continued application of it to our practical needs.
- B. But these practical needs and lessons do follow a pattern:

Be Delivered,
Rejoice in your deliverance,
and Grow.

Under the last category, we grow as we learn to:

 dwell in the sanctuary,
 receive daily strength,
 profit by the lessons of history,
 develop our character by mastery of the Word,
 leave our judgments and wrath to God,
 grow in love to Him through worship,
 and,
 order our lives according to the work of His Spirit and the Word of Truth.

- C. The one who comes giving himself to these concepts will have an increasing appreciation of His salvation and God's calling.
