

I can guarantee, absolutely, that many will not be happy with my classifications but since when did making the students happy become a goal of the course?

a. The Non-Sectarian groups

This, of course, is a contradiction in terminology but I am using it in the sense in which it is used by these bodies. Most of my discussion will be oral and you may wish to take a few notes so I have allotted a bit of space. The bodies listed below are merely identified, do not always have a lot in common, but have this one thing between them...they don't want to be called anything so it is a non-sectarian group that will eventually have to identify itself in a sectarian way. (1) The "Disciples" class

These are chiefly the followers of the Campbells and Barton Stone. I will note background briefly and the residual bodies later:
